Catalogue 2011

Bringing print to life

Welcome to our 2011 catalogue

Welcome to this new catalogue from National Talking Newspapers and Magazines, the first issued since we joined the RNIB Group in February 2010.

Our aim is to provide blind and partially sighted people with access to the widest possible range of magazines and digests of the national press in a variety of formats. This catalogue gives details of all the newspapers and magazines available in audio, principally on CD but also including tape, all delivered straight to your door.

We also make available electronically the full texts of national newspapers and an increasing range of magazines and regional newspapers, which you can download whenever you want. You can also download MP3 audio recordings from our website to play on an MP3 player or even your mobile phone.

If you, or someone you know, would like to subscribe to our titles, please contact our customer service team, who can help with any queries you may have.

We hope that the titles in this catalogue include something for all tastes and interests. If there is a publication you would like us to read for you, please let us know and we'll do our best to add it to our range.

CD audio titles

This catalogue lists the titles available through our audio CD service where our team of staff and volunteers record selections of articles and features from all the top magazines and newspapers. Each article is recorded as a separate track on the CD so you can browse articles easily and quickly.

Our range of magazines and newspapers are sorted into categories to help you browse. Each title is followed by the order reference code, the frequency of when you can expect the title to be delivered to your door and the price per year.

Each CD title contains about 75 minutes of selected features, articles and top stories from the current published magazine.

If you have a DAISY player as part of RNIB's Talking Book Service or other DAISY portable player then you can subscribe to one of our five DAISY compilation CDs, which are listed separately. Each DAISY compilation is a selection of our top titles. You can see on which compilation each title appears listed in a bracket after the title description.

All titles are correct at the time of publishing. We may have to change our listing in response to publishers, so please contact us to check if we have your favourite title available. An up-to-date listing can be found at: tnauk.org.uk

Free audio titles from SoundTalking

What equipment do I need?

Audio CD

Recordings on audio CD offer easier navigation, high playback quality and you can keep them to listen to again. Audio CDs will play on any standard CD player. They can also be played on computers, RNIB Talking Book players as well as DVD players attached to your TV.

Audio download

All of the publications we provide on audio CD are also available to download via our website for an annual fee. The downloaded MP3 recording can be played live over the internet (streaming) or downloaded to your computer. You can transfer the downloaded recording to your portable MP3 player, including mobile phone, iPod, Milestone, Victor Stream, Book Courier or any number of other portable players. Titles can be downloaded in 45 minute recordings (two or four per title) or by individual article. Visit tnauk.org.uk for the full list of titles available.

Online service

Titles are available as a digital text download for an annual subscription. These downloaded text files can then be read using your own screen reading software on your computer or by using built-in text-to-speech software in DAISY players or some mobile phones. You can download the files yourself from our website or your favourites can be emailed to your in-box. Most daily newspapers are delivered on the day of publication and include the majority of printed information (except adverts and offers). Visit tnauk.org.uk for the full list of titles available.

DAISY

Our range of DAISY compilations deliver choice and value. They are sent to you on a CD and can be played on any DAISY player including RNIB Talking Book players. There are now many more portable players available to fit in your pocket. DAISY offers easy and quick navigation through the title, variable playback speed as well as the ability to bookmark your favourite articles.
